Jap Movements Indicate All Out Offensive

Invasion of India
Believed Near as Australian Attack
Slackens

By the Associated Press
Japanese fleet movements in the Indian ocean suggested Friday that a new storm may be brewing far north of Australian war theater as Japanese invasion armies exerted pressure to knock out the Chinese defenders of Burma.

In the Philippines a War Department bulletin reported that Gen. Yamashita's invasion forces were pounding American defending forts in Manila Bay with increasing violence.

The communique said the enemy made 7 successive aerial attacks on Corregidor in the last 24-hours with the island under almost continuous bombardment from early morning to midnight Thursday.

On Bataan clashes between patrols as well as troops and truck movement behind the enemy lines indicated the invaders were preparing for an all-out offensive.

Quezon in Australia
Meanwhile President Manuel Quezon and his Philippine War Cabinet rejoined General Douglas MacArthur in Australia—less than a week after the Tokyo radio broadcast reported that he was dead.

U. S. Army headquarters said he left the Philippines "with approval of both American and Australian governments."

In the battle of Burma the critical struggle for the eastern gateway to India, British headquarters reported that Japanese pressure was falling upon Chinese forces at Tungoo-prithi, Rangoon-Mandalay road.

Japanese troops were said to have blocked the Chinese route of withdrawal 8 to 12 miles north of Houn-goo.

Flying Tigers Active
Hard hitting "Flying Tigers" of the American volunteer group struck 70 miles deep into Japanese-occupied Thailand to blast Japanese airfields at Chienmai and Lampun, destroying more than 10 enemy planes.

Chinese headquarters said American fliers surprised 40 to 50 Japanese planes on the ground on Chienmai and defied a hail of anti-aircraft fire to rate the craft with gunfire.

Seven fires were noted with three enemy planes destroyed in one blaze. British efforts to mobilize India's 380 million population on the side of Mohandas K. Gandhi, aged champion of India's freedom, met with Sir Stafford Cripps, British representative, at New Delhi.

WIDE WORLD WAR BOOK

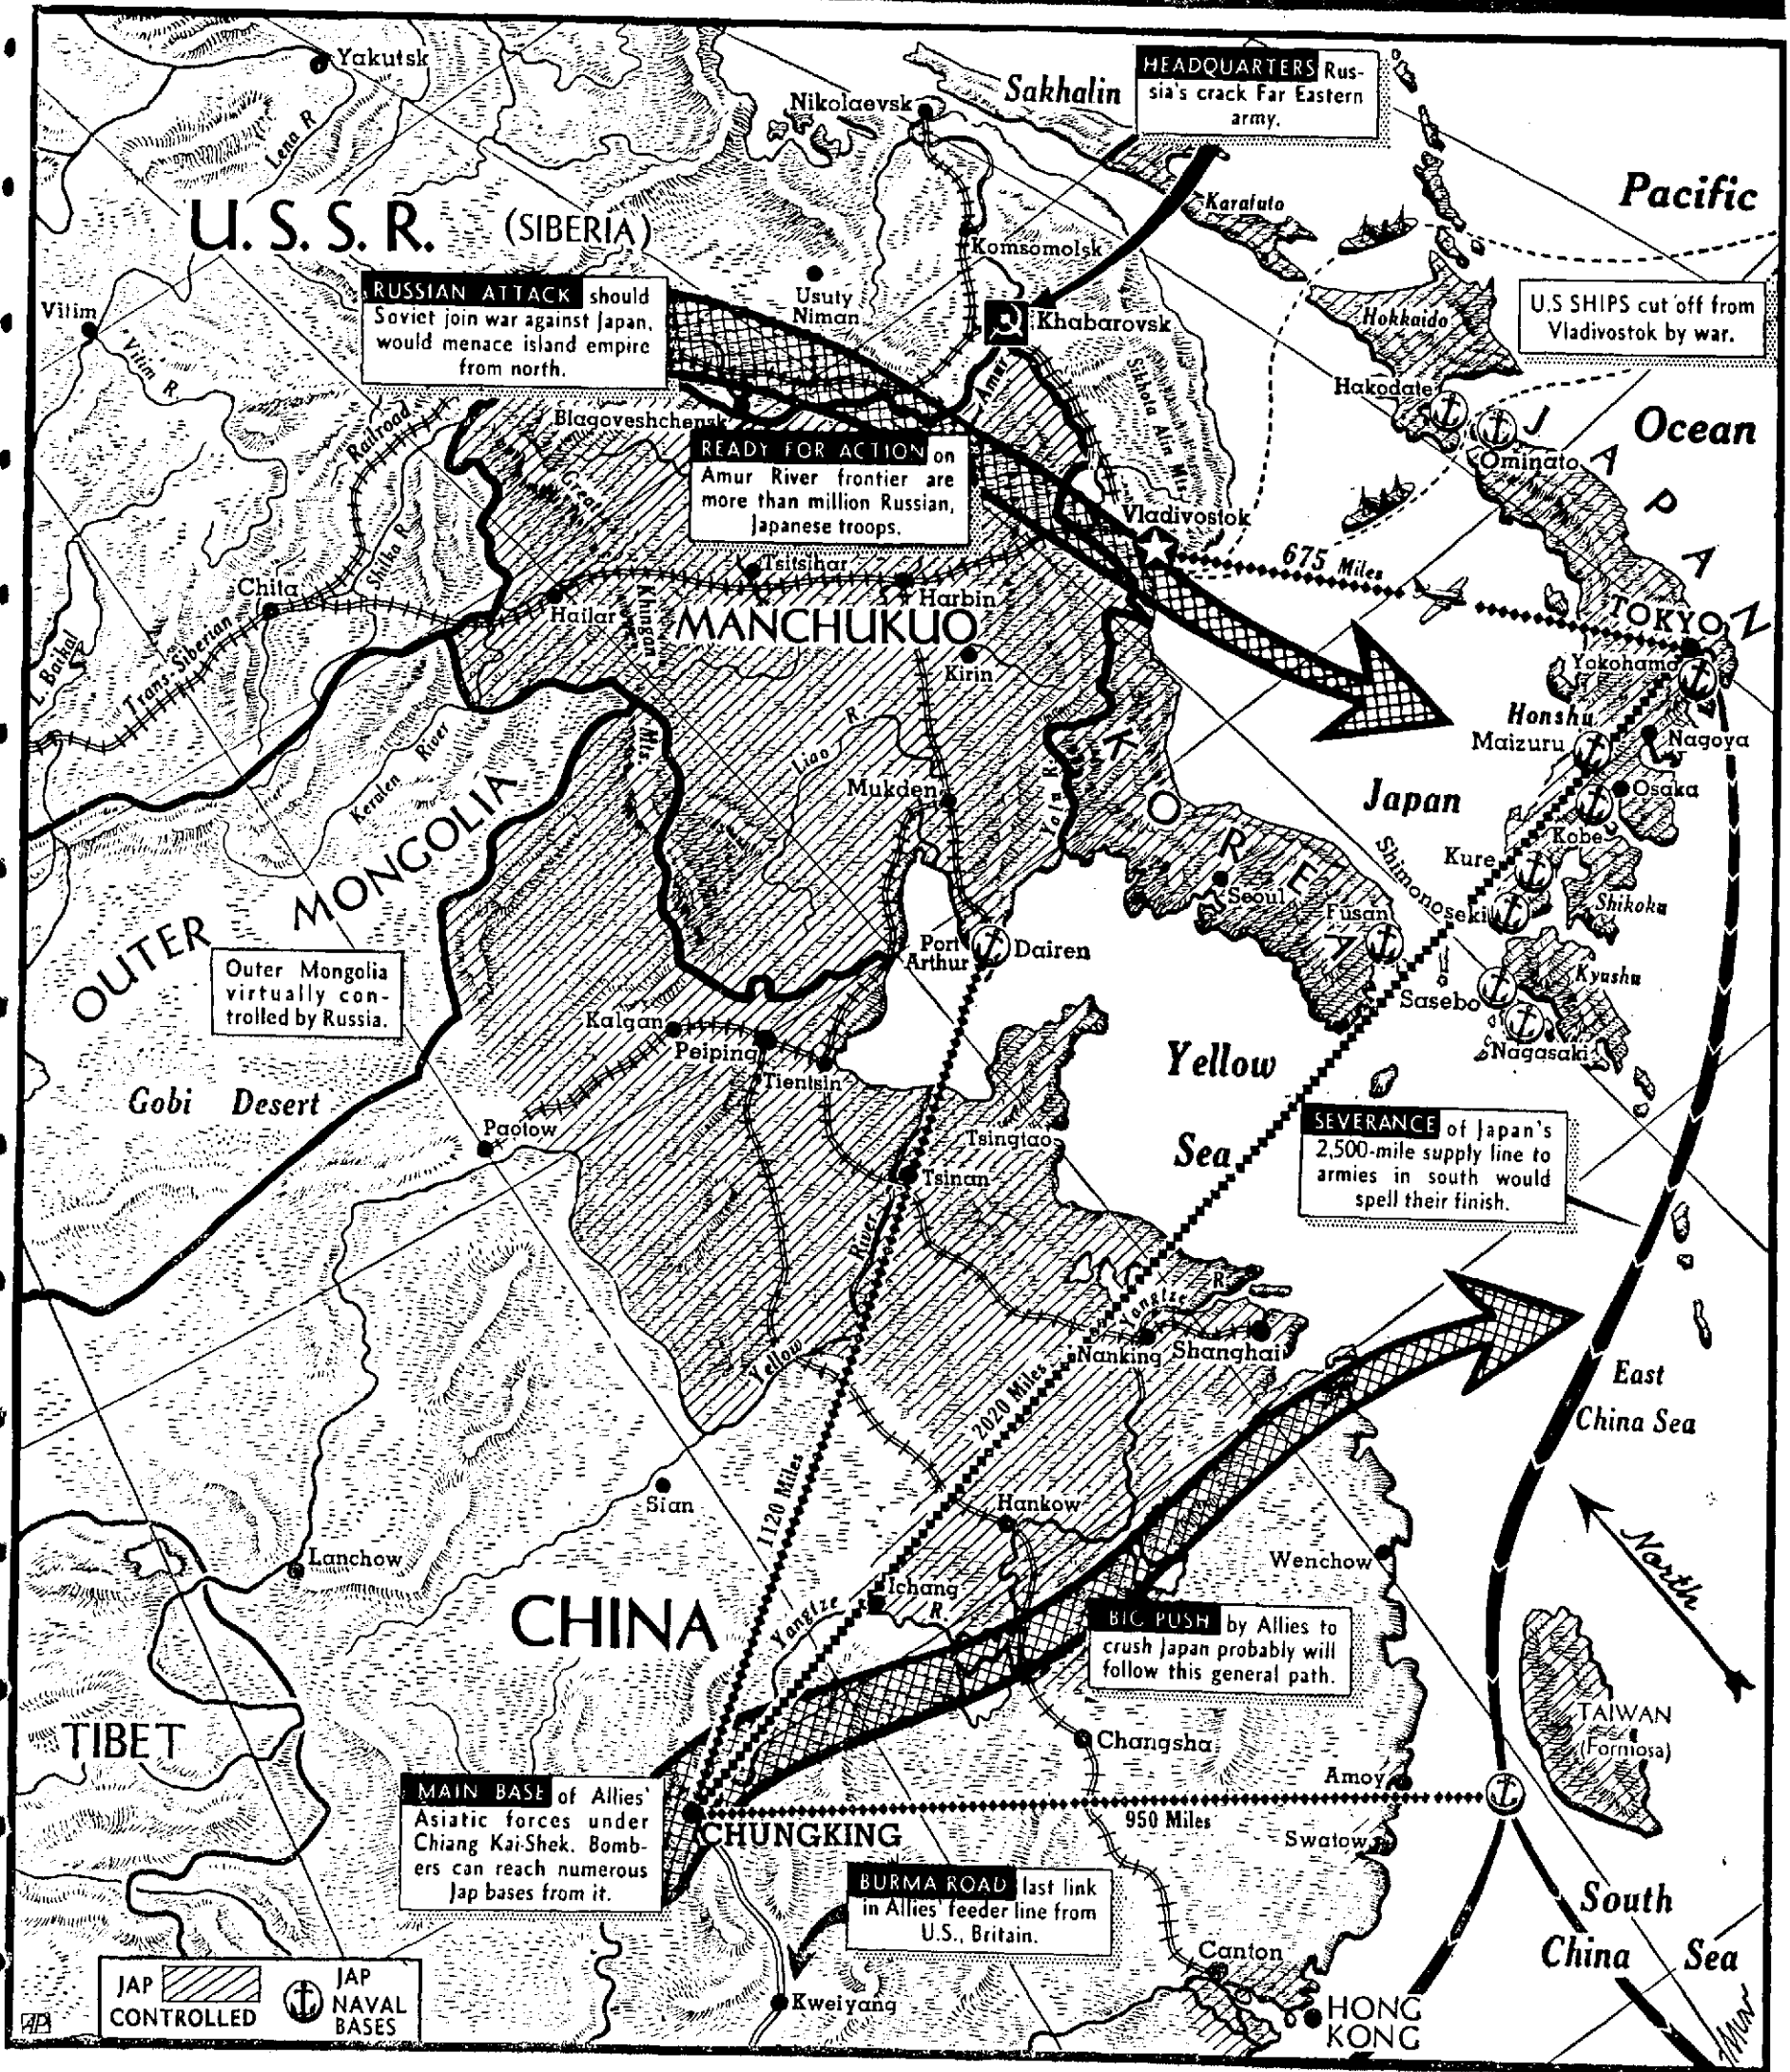

THE HOPE STAR

HOPE, ARKANSAS, FEBRUARY 14, 1942

HOW ADMIRALS SEE THE WIDEST WAR ARENA

ASIATIC FRONTIER: THE BIG PROVING GROUND

IF ANYTHING counterbalances Japan's success in her tremendous drive to the south, it is the fact that unsubdued China and Russia still exist. They are just cause for genuine apprehension in the Niponese military hierarchy.

Russia, should she desire to even old scores with the island empire, is in position to sow the seeds of ultimate destruction. Not only does she have an army ready to strike from Siberia, but could easily bomb the flimsy Japanese cities from Vladivostok.

In the south, the Chinese armies of Chiang Kai-Shek—5,000,000 regulars and perhaps 12,000,000 reserves—still control a wide area from their capital at Chungking. Supplied by America and Britain over the tortuous Burma Road, they may become the nucleus of the Allies' first large-scale offensive in the East—through China to the sea and Japan's 2,500-mile exposed supply line.

From a half-dozen advance bases, Japan meanwhile pushes desperately into the rich Indies, absorbing tremendous losses to gain control of the basic materials of war. She is reliably reported to need some 9,000,000 tons of oil to keep her armies fighting a year; the Indies produce that much and more. Rubber and tin likewise are available in great quantities. What is lacking could be found in Australia and India, the next steps beyond.

'SPEED AND FIREPOWER' IS ARMY'S GOAL

BLITZ WARFARE is based on two main operations: (1) control of air to observe, disrupt enemy attack, and (2) a fast-striking armored force with devastating firepower to encircle the foe and to keep his forces scattered.

BOMBERS are modern artillery for blanketing attack. Varied duties demand many sizes, designs. Above, towering over a pursuit plane, is the Army's biggest (Douglas B-19) of 82 tons, 8,000 horsepower, rated to fly 7,750 miles non-stop. The U. S. wants to produce 60,000 planes of all types this year.

TANKS are the backbone of land attack. This is the Army's newest, biggest model, the 60-ton T1. Flanked by medium and light tanks, by armored cars and smaller "blitz buggies," its tough armor, cannon, machine guns make it a land battleship. It can take more punishment than the crew. Its job is to open enemy lines for faster vehicles. Uncle Sam is gearing to build 45,000 tanks this year, 75,000 next.

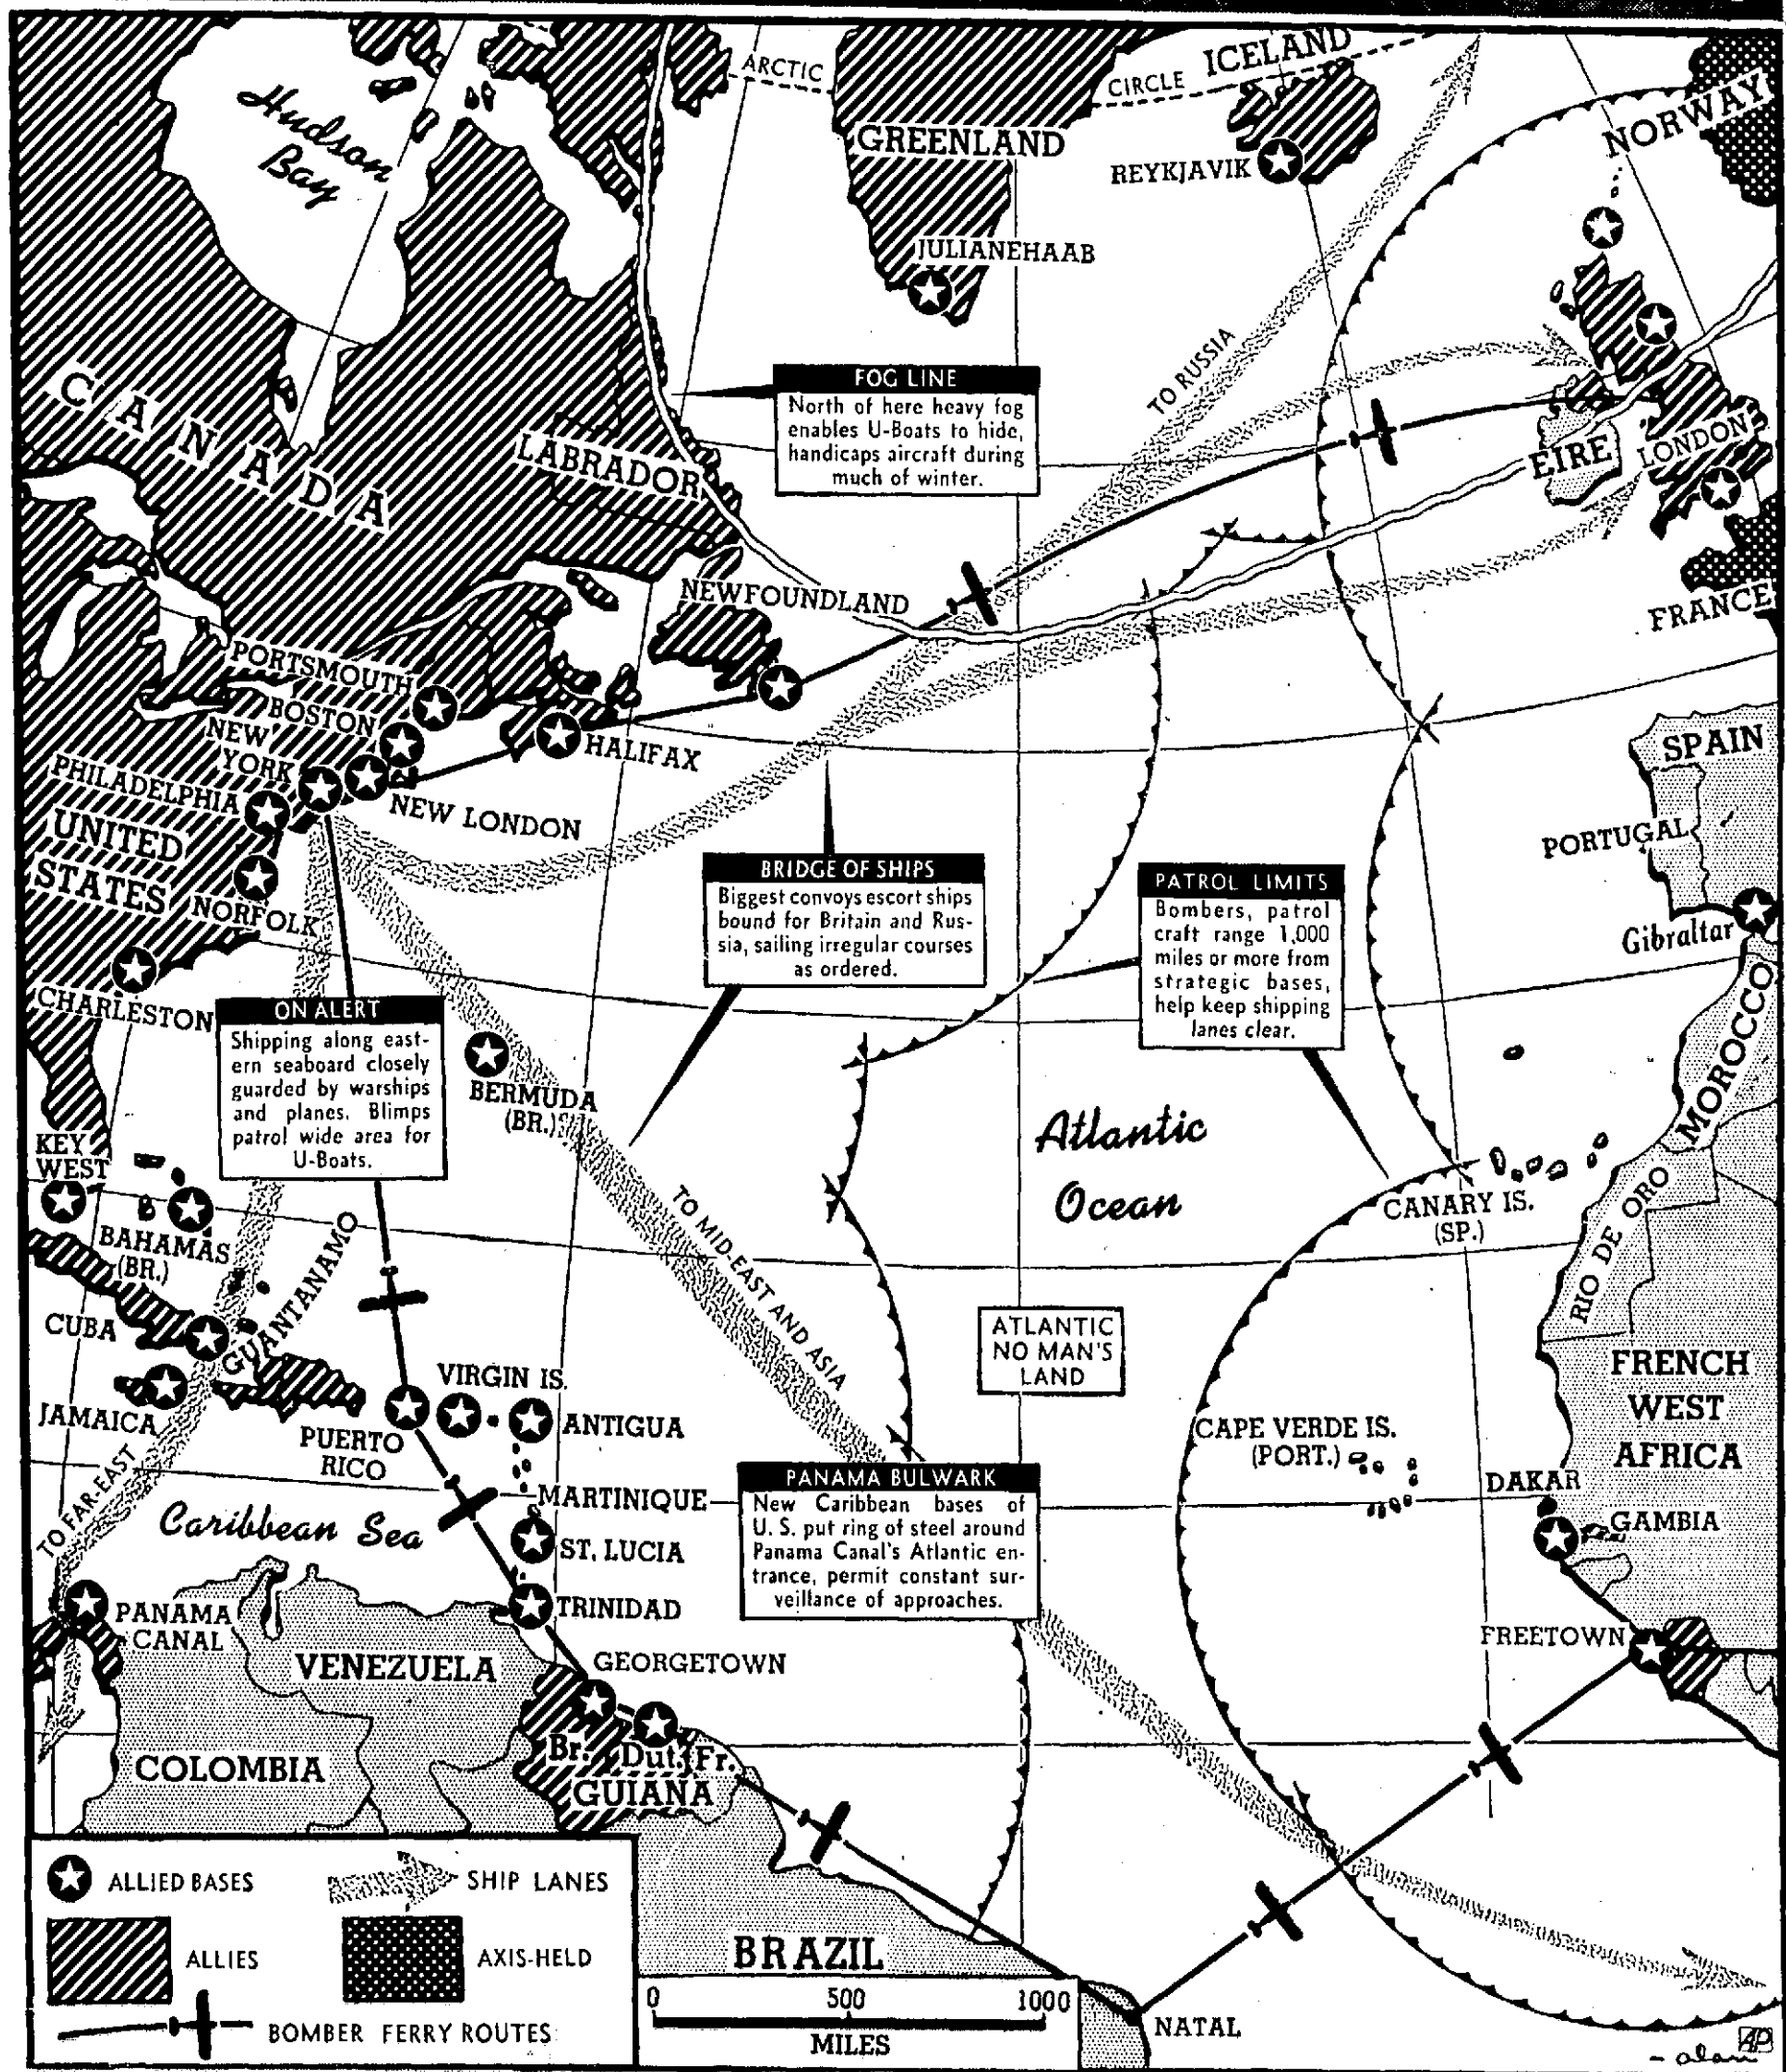

'CHUTE TROOPS leap from air transports to gain strategic points behind enemy lines. If they can seize an airport, more troops are ferried in by plane.

MOTORIZED TROOPS—armored divisions—are being put together all over the U. S. Industrial output now is reported passing Germany's maximum in many phases of war ordnance. Trial by Great Britain in battle has proved American materiel "vastly superior." About one-third of all U. S. combat troops now use semi-automatic or automatic rifles. This rugged "jeep" car, with heavily-armed crew leaping into action, symbolizes new day of "speed and firepower."

AMERICA AND BRITAIN RULE THE ATLANTIC

THE Atlantic, unlike other war theaters, is a place where Britain and America, not the Axis, hold the trump cards.

Every Nazi vessel venturing from the sheltered bases in occupied Norway and France, runs the greatest of risks. It must evade two great fleets, each superior to Germany's, besides escaping detection from the air.

Allied bases completely ring the vast watery battleground, America ruling the western portion and Britain the eastern. In the narrow belt between, beyond reach of the longest reconnaissance planes—Axis vessels get their only break. Yet even here they must run the risk of head-on encounters with enemy men of war.

Most Allied merchant vessels cross the Atlantic in convoys, the heaviest-armed ships at the four corners and the valuable cargoes—oil and airplanes—in the center. Ringing the group are destroyers and larger war vessels, assisted by long-range patrol craft and bombers.

Germany's naval strength in the Atlantic is such that she can seriously menace such convoys only with the deadly and sinister U-boat. Because of technical improvements and closer home bases, it can range farther afield than in former wars. But even occasional spectacular U-boat successes do not win wars. Control of an ocean requires a full-scale fleet and numerous bases. In the Atlantic, only Britain and America have them.

THE MEDITERRANEAN HAS THREE IRON DOORS

MID-EAST: STRATEGISTS' ARABIAN NIGHTMARE

ON A warm day last mid-June Adolf Hitler addressed the German people:

"I have today decided to give the fate of the German people and the Reich and of Europe again into the hands of our soldiers."

He spoke as Nazi armies began a bold lightning invasion of Russia, a gigantic campaign intended to acquire, by winter time, the Caucasus and all of the land west of the Volga. Russia's army, in the German war calendar, was to be wiped out.

Never was a nation more grievously disappointed. True, Nazi armies rolled to the doors of Leningrad, Moscow and the Caucasus, but then they stopped. Winter came and Russia seized the offensive. In the face of retreat that seemed sometimes more like a rout, Hitler announced that his plans had been changed.

Military experts agreed generally that he made one great mistake, that of underestimating his foe. He was believed to have withdrawn great numbers of troops for winter duty elsewhere, perhaps in the strategic but unpredictable Mid-East.

This vast region of desert and petroleum would be a rich Nazi prize, accessible from Greece, Crete and dominated Bulgaria. But here, as in Russia, another tremendous battle threatened. Britain, taking no chances with the safety of her vital Suez canal and the rich oil fields of Iraq and Iran, spread a mechanized defense army all the way from Egypt to the Caspian Sea.

Bill for 31,070 Army Planes Sent to House

Measure Asks for $18,302,187,148 to Build Craft by End of Year

WASHINGTON—(P)—An $18,302,187,148 emergency appropriations bill carrying funds for 31,070 new Army warplanes and for an army which will reach 3,600,000 by the end of this year was sent to the house Friday by its appropriations committee.

Recommending that all but about a billion dollars be turned over to the War Department, the committee asked for $6,990,000,000 for airplanes complete with spare parts, radio and ordnance. Congress provided funds in January for 33,000 planes and Lt. General Arnold, air corps chief, said another 23,500 would be requested.

President Roosevelt recommended to congress a 60,000 plane program for this year and a 125,000 plane program for 1943.

The total of the bill which contained money for a host of war activities boosted to more than $160,000,000,000 the defense and war appropriations made and in prospect since July 1, 1940 but the committee sounded a note of warning about considering that war supplies of that value had been acquired.

North Central Admits Ouachita

Local Baptist Church Played Important Role

Ouachita College at Arkadelphia was readmitted to full membership in the North Central Association of Colleges at the annual meeting in Chicago, Dr. J. R. Grant, president of the college, announced in a message Thursday night to Leonard Price, the business manager.

After 10 years in which financial considerations kept Ouachita college from membership in the North Central Association, its readmission is the culmination of years of promotional effort by President Grant and the Board of Trustees and a program of support by the Arkansas Baptist Convention. The Rev. W. R. Hamilton, of Hope, for five years a member of the board of trustees and now secretary of the board, was in the business manager's office on college business when the message from Chicago was received. He states there was rejoicing in the business office, and over the campus, similar to that when the Ouachita football team won the state college championship last fall by twice defeating Henderson State Teachers college at Arkadelphia. State Teachers at Conway and Arkadelphia, and "Tech" at Russellville and Arkadelphia. The students were trying to "declare" Friday a holiday in celebration, but the faculty had not yet agreed when Mr. Hamilton left the campus Thursday night.

The First Baptist church at Hope has had a large part in the progress of Ouachita college during the years since it was officially launched in 1885 at the annual meeting of the Arkansas Baptist Convention in the Hope church. During the recent campaign for funds with which to erect an auditorium and reduce the indebtedness, the local church, under the direction of a committee headed by Dr. G. E. Cannon, contributed nearly $1000 directly to the college in addition to the percentage allocated in the cooperative program of mission, educational and benevolent work of the denomination to which the sum of approximately $2,000 will be contributed by the First Baptist church during the year 1942.

250 British Planes Bomb Krupp Works

Bulgaria Reported Ready to Break With Russia, Supply Troops

By the Associated Press

Giant four-engined British bombers, perhaps 250 strong and carrying two-ton explosives, smashed at Germany's great Krupp munitions works and other Nazi foundries in the Rhur Thursday night pressing the spring aerial offensive in one of the heaviest assaults of the war.

By daylight the RAF fighter planes beat off a retaliatory German thrust turning the raiders back after a brief fight over the English southeast coast.

The air ministry said Friday the huge bomber force also pounded on enemy airdromes in Holland and oil refineries near Ghent and the docks at Le Havre, France.

The air ministry acknowledged the loss of 13 bombers.

The German command said Nazis anti-aircraft gunners and night fighters shot down 16 bombers in raids over western Germany.

Europe stirred in anticipation of Hitler's next move.

The London Daily Mail dispatches quoting reports from Berlin said King Boris of Bulgaria had agreed to break off relations with Russia under German pressure and to supply Hitler with 200,000 troops.

"Bulgarian divisions are moving toward the southern frontier particularly toward the lower Maritza valley," the dispatch said—indicating a threat to Britain's Allied but still neutral Turkey.

Informed Balkan sources reported that all available German troops in Southeast Europe were massing in Bulgaria and Greece including 3 divisions shifted from Yugoslavia to the Turkish border.

On the north African front a lull enforced by fierce sandstorms was broken as British desert patrols advanced 40 miles to inflict casualties on Axis troops at Hageh el Elcha, 20 miles northeast of El Mechili.

On the Soviet front Russia's red armies reported fresh gains.

A British dispatch said the Germans were fortifying Kiev and blasting ice off the Dnieper river at Nazi-occupied capital of the Ukraine—this despite the fact that Red army spearheads still were about 200 miles away when last reported.

Guerrilla bands were said to be active about the city. Stockholm dispatches said the Russians pierced fortifications at Gzhtask—some of the strongest against that base 100 miles west of Moscow.

From Malta, British Mediterranean stronghold which has been bombed more than any other spot in the world, came reports that the Axis had lost at least 50 planes and spent tons of explosives since March 1 in a vain attempt to knock it out of the war.

By the Associated Press

Japanese fleet movements in the Indian ocean suggested Friday that a new storm may be brewing far north of Australian war theater as Japanese invasion armies exerted pressure to knock out the Chinese defenders of Burma.

In the Philippines a War Department bulletin reported that Gen. Yamashita's invasion forces were pounding American defending forts in Manila Bay with increasing violence.

The communiqué said the enemy made 7 successive aerial attacks on Corregidor in the last 24-hours with the island under almost continuous bombardment from early morning to midnight Thursday.

War Sweeps Into Jungles of Australia's New Guinea

War shattered the paradise of head-hunting, spear-throwing, cannibalistic natives in the practically impassable interior of New Guinea when Jap invaders plunged through its volcanic mountains and swampy jungles. Map portrays the difficult terrain of the Australian mandated section of the island, into whose high, cool mountainous regions the white man only in recent years had dared to venture in search of hidden gold and other untapped resources.

OCD Hears Well

Known Voice

As Result Organization Really Got to Working

By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON — The amputations at the Office of Civilian Defense continue. Critics a few weeks ago were calling it a boon-doggling centipede with scores of extraneous legs, but it's being rapidly pared down to a four legged wag dog with the single objective of guarding the welfare of the civil population under any wartime catastrophe.

What has happened and is happening to OCD is another example of how democracy works when it gets its dander up and how the "voice of the people" can get a job done effectively.

here were only rumblings when the OCD was coasting along under the direction of New York's Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia. It was apparent that the little dynamo of N. Y. City Hall had spread his tremendous energies too thin, but nobody took it very seriously until Dancer Maylis Chaney's twinkling toes booted the whole business into the critical limelight.

The flood of objections that rolled up against making a sociological enterprise out of what was purely a civilian defense effort not only swept Miss Chaney out of her job, but also washed out Mayor LaGuardia, Mrs. Roosevelt, and a score of lesser OCD officials. Dean James M. Landis, of Harvard, took over. But that didn't stop the criticism.

The storm settled around the physical fitness unit with coordinators of everything from archery to yachting, including codeball, horseback walking, naddle and table tennis, walking, and bag punching. Now that, too, has gone the way of other extracurricular OCD activities—transferred by executive order of the President to Paul V. McNutt's Office of Defense Health and Welfare.

That, say the critics now, is where it belongs. It's important to note that even the severest critics think "it" belongs somewhere.

Nearly 50 per cent of the registrants in the first draft had to be turned down because of physical defects. In the present draft, including men from 20 to 44, the rate is likely to run higher.

Reports from the entire country are not in, but if the District of Columbia can be taken as any gauge, there are two significant things in recent surveys: (1) The physical defects of potential draftees consisted of 20 per cent dental; 11 per cent venereal disease; eyes, heart, musculo skeletal and feet defects, nervous and mental diseases, 10 per cent each; ear, nose and throat troubles, 5 per cent; and down from down to minor percentages; and (2) there is only one school in the district that offers more than two hours a week of physical training (exclusive of voluntary sports).

Paul McNutt has under his direction the office of Education. Starting with the schools and working out to older age groups, it is possible that the much maligned physical fitness unit of OCD may become one of the important factors in fitting the nation for a long time war effort.

Justice Felix Frankfurter of the United States Supreme Court is a native of Vienna, Austria.

will be presented throughout the week each afternoon at 4:30 at the First Presbyterian church. People of all denominations are invited to attend the series of programs.

when they see it. Our mothers and our grandmothers might not have worked in munitions factories, but they had what it took when the emergency became plain to them. Parsifal Does A Walk-Out

Wagner Criticised for Trying to Change Tradition

By GEORGE TUCKER
NEW YORK — Lauritz Melchior, mighty Siegfried of the Met, sends in a note. He wants to explain why he ignores certain instructions laid down by the great Wagner himself when he sings Parsifal.

Every year, when Melchior sings Parsifal, there is one scene in the first act when he leaves the stage. Wagner thought Parsifal should remain on the stage. Students of Wagner, horrified at this flouting of tradition, never fail to lambast the good-natured Dane.

Now Parsifal is coming up again, and the thoughtful Melchior wants to point out a few little matters in advance, so that the critics won't be horrified and grieved all over again. For, as usual, he plans to leave the stage, just as he always has left it, Wagner or not. Here is his note:

"Each year around this time, with the regularity of the seasons, three major events take place in my life—my income tax, Parsifal at the Met, and the subsequent observations of the music critics concerning my departure from the stage during the first temple scene of the opera.

"These comments, varied as they are, have a single characteristic in common. They all decry the fact that in leaving the stage I am thus flouting a tradition of long standing.

"Allow me to explain my position, which in this case, is behind wings. Just as you yourselves have discussed the matter so did my good friend Artur Bodanzky (now dead) and I. Mr. Bodanzky reached the conclusion, which in the interest of clarity might be summed up by the phrase, 'A healthy Parsifal outages better than one that is honest Siegfried the next day.'

"Unromantic drafts, inconsiderate winds that blow in from the Tiber, the entrance of the Metropolitan since when the scenery is being sent over for storage resulted in the philosophy which determined the course of the action in the opera. We were faced with the problem either of defying the winds of Providence or the accepted tradition of Wagner at these performances.

"Bodanzky decided against the first because he felt I should brave the cold reception of the critics rather than gripe with a soupcon of pneumonia. I admit it took a great deal of courage at first. Certainly it meant braving the wrath of adherents to a tradition of many years. But on second thought, I merely bowed to an older tradition, one that began with Wagner himself—the tradition of 'The Common Cold.'

"Cordially, Lauritz Melchior."
